KENYA WEEKLY MARKET WRAP

ECONOMY NEWS

December 2024 PMI slows to 50.6 from 50.9 in November The Kenya Purchasing Managers' Index (PMI) for December 2024 signaled a slightly slower expansion in private sector activity compared to November 2024. The PMI reading stood at 50.6, down from 50.9 in November, but remained above the neutral threshold for the third consecutive month. This marginal growth was driven by increases in output, new orders, and employment, marking the first full quarter of output expansion since late 2021.

However, rising input cost led firms to increase selling prices at the fastest pace since December 2023, fueled by stronger demand and higher taxes, with the agriculture and manufacturing sectors particularly impacted. Despite these gains, private sector confidence remains subdued, with only 5% of surveyed firms expressing optimism about future output growth. This cautious outlook reflects persistent economic challenges and declining inventories as businesses aim to manage costs effectively.

Kenya's Economy Slows to 4% in Q3 2024, Sectors Shift

The Kenya National Bureau of Statistics (KNBS) released the economic growth figures for the third quarter of 2024, highlighting GDP growth rate of 4.0%. This translates to a decline of 60bps and 200bps compared to the 4.6% and 6.0% growth recorded in 2Q24 and 3Q23, respectively. It also marks the slowest quarterly growth since 4Q22. The growth was primarily driven by the agriculture, real estate, and transport & storage sectors, which expanded by 4.2%, 5.5%, and 5.2%, respectively. However, these growth rates were slower than their corresponding performances in 2Q24 and 3Q23, except for the transport sector. The transport sector's performance was underpinned by increased consumption of light diesel, likely due to lower prices compared to 2Q24 and 3Q23. On the other hand, the construction and mining & quarrying sectors were the only industries to record contractions during the period.
